Everything You Could Possibly Want To Know About CPVC Sprinkler Systems

The use on CPVC pipe and fittings in the installation of fire sprinkler systems is gaining market share on a daily basis. Although CPVC pipe and fittings can overcome many of the challenges installing Fire Protection Contractors face every day there are risks associated with the use of these products. Our meeting this month will focus on issues with CPVC pipe and fittings such as: concealed and exposed installation, thermal expansion, chemical compatibility inside and outside the piping, proper hanger requirements, solvent cementing in cold weather, limited oxygen index and what that means to designing a system, basement installations in NFPA 13D systems, sprinkler head adapter installation, set and cure times, pressure testing and others.

Our speaker for this meeting will be Mark Lemire from Lubrizol. Mark has been involved in the plumbing supply business for twenty four years serving with the Granite Group in Concord, New Hampshire as an Outside Salesman, Branch Manager and Central Distribution Manager. Mark has also held positions with HD (Hughes) Supply as a Branch Manager and District Sales Manager. Mark brought his experience to Lubrizol in February of 2005 as a Field Consultant and was assigned to cover New England and New York focusing on Flow Guard Gold and Corzan CPVC used in commercial water distribution systems and in 2007, Mark received Lubrizol's Winner Circle Award. Currently, Mark is the Territory Manager for New England and New York specializing in Blaze Master Fire Sprinkler Systems.
